Chair’s Message

YOU TUBE

As far as am I concerned, the internet would be nothing without You Tube. Besides being a great source of entertainment (you know what I mean Dolan!) it is an equally great education and training tool. My favorite series is “TIG Time” starring Mr. Tig. This series is featured on the WELD.COM site, but the videos will pop up with any “How to Tig Weld” search.

Check out a few of these videos:
1. Welding 4130 chrome moly tubing
2. How to weld Inconel 625
3. Tig welding 6C pipe root pass
4. Tig brazing copper to brass

Mr. Tig also likes to hang out at Jay Leno’s garage. There is a video where he takes on the challenge of welding a 100 year old cast iron part for an antique Leno car, and another or welding a titanium exhaust for Jay.

It’s entertaining, and good training.

Presentation:
“Robotics in Welding”

Speaker: Ken Hyun, Regional Sales Manager—Northeast
Motoman Robotics Division, Yaskawa America, Inc.

This will be a non-denomination talk about how robots can be utilized in the welding industry. AWS has already estimated that there is a shortage of more than 200,000 qualified welders in the US currently, and with fewer of the younger generation entering the welding field, the shortage will only get worse.

Robotics can be used to help narrow the gap and reduce the skill level needed. We will review what technologies exist and what is on the horizon that can be used to help increase quality, throughput and reduce labor costs.

Ken Hyun is currently the Northeast Regional Sales Manager for Yaskawa America, Inc., Motoman Robotics Division. His background has been in welding ever since graduating from college. He started at The Lincoln Electric Co., and has spent time in sales, robotic automation and product development. After 10 years with Lincoln, he joined Motoman in 2014 to do what he loved with robotics.
